

Persblaaraalwyn (Aloe parvibracteata)

Aloe parvibracteata is a hardy, evergreen, stemless Aloe that suckers freely.

Rating: Not Rated Yet

Price

Sales price R 45,00

Ask a question about this product

Description

South African Aloe: Persblaaraalwyn (Aloe parvibracteata)

Description

Aloe parvibracteata is a hardy, evergreen, stemless Aloe that suckers freely. The leaves are carried in a compact rosette and have spots in bands.

The branched flower stem bears dull-red or coral-red flowers on tall stems and are borne in winter, June to August. Insects and sunbirds are attracted to its copious nectar.

Use in a grassland garden or plant en masse for a stunning display. Unusually this Aloe thrives in swampy areas so can be planted around a pond with great success. It also makes a wonderful container plant.

It is not fussy about the soil and will grow in clay soils. Plant mainly in full sun but it will tolerate a little shade during the day.

Size 20 to 40cm

View the source for informaton: https://species.wikimedia.org/wiki/Aloe_parvibracteata and

<https://www.randomharvest.co.za/South-African-Indigenous-Plants/Show-Plant/PlantId/756/Plant/Aloe-parvibracteata>

Reviews

There are yet no reviews for this product.